Convergence lines: lines that are parallel to each other such as two rails of track tracks will often appear to converge in a single vanishing point in the distance from your point of view.

Vanishing points are the exact spots where convergence lines meet. often on horizon but not always.

dimension the boxes recede is depth: width and height stay parallel in perspective
 - width and height don't recede technically only the boxes in middle were 1p and rest are 2p perspective

Angle of convergence so slight it doesn't matter vanishing point not always in middle of page

In one point perspective only one dimension of a 3D subject seems to recede to VP (Vanishing point) Example: Looking straight at the middle then edge (2p) or steep (3p)

Drawing with one point perspective

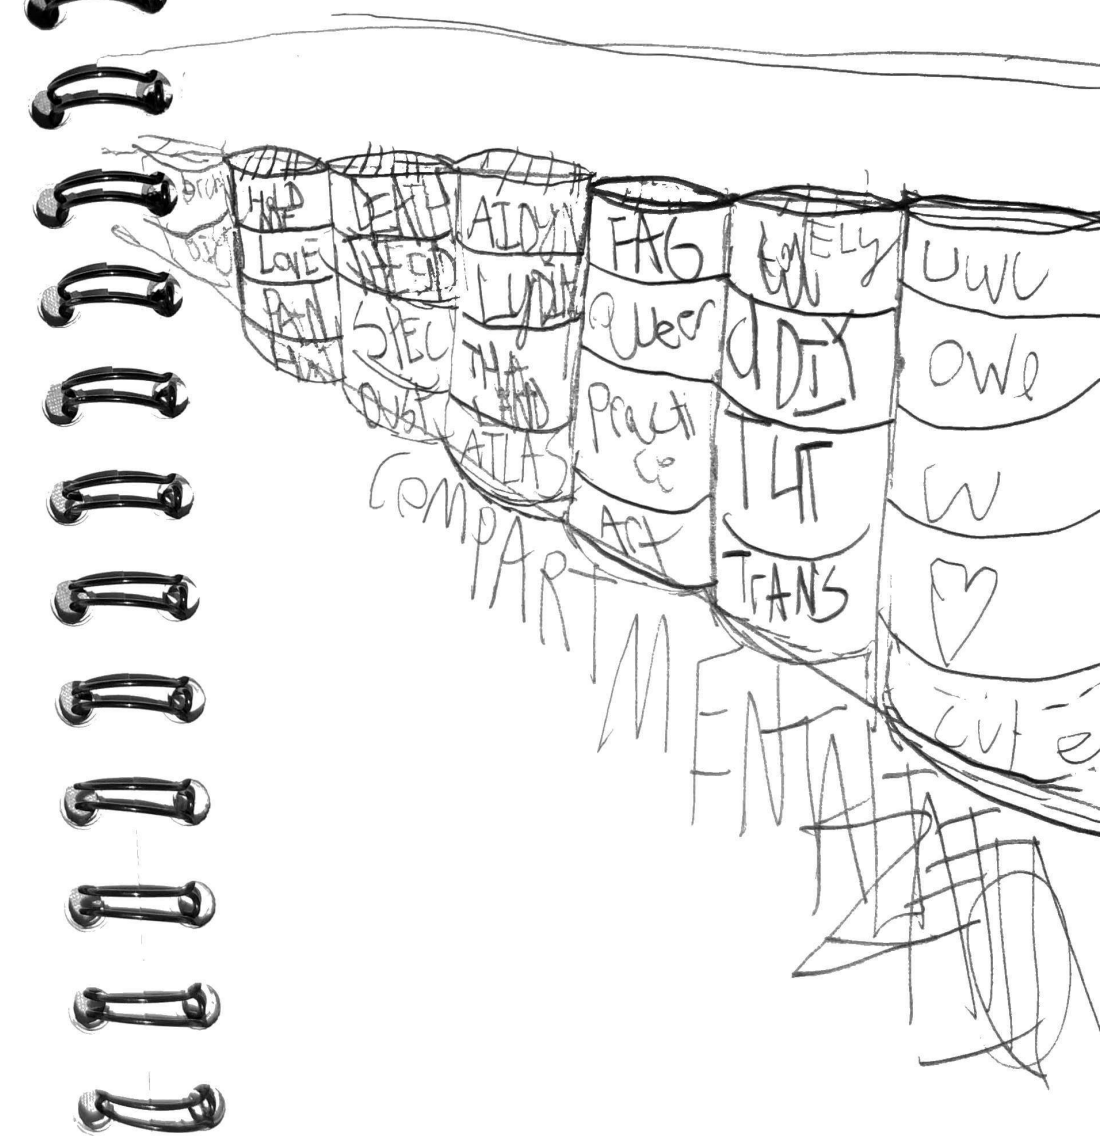

1. Quick thumbnail sketch to work out pleasing composition and you can find rough locations of convergence lines NP and horizon.

2. SET horizon. Be careful of setting too high then draw convergence lines and VP

- Thin lines easily erased for later

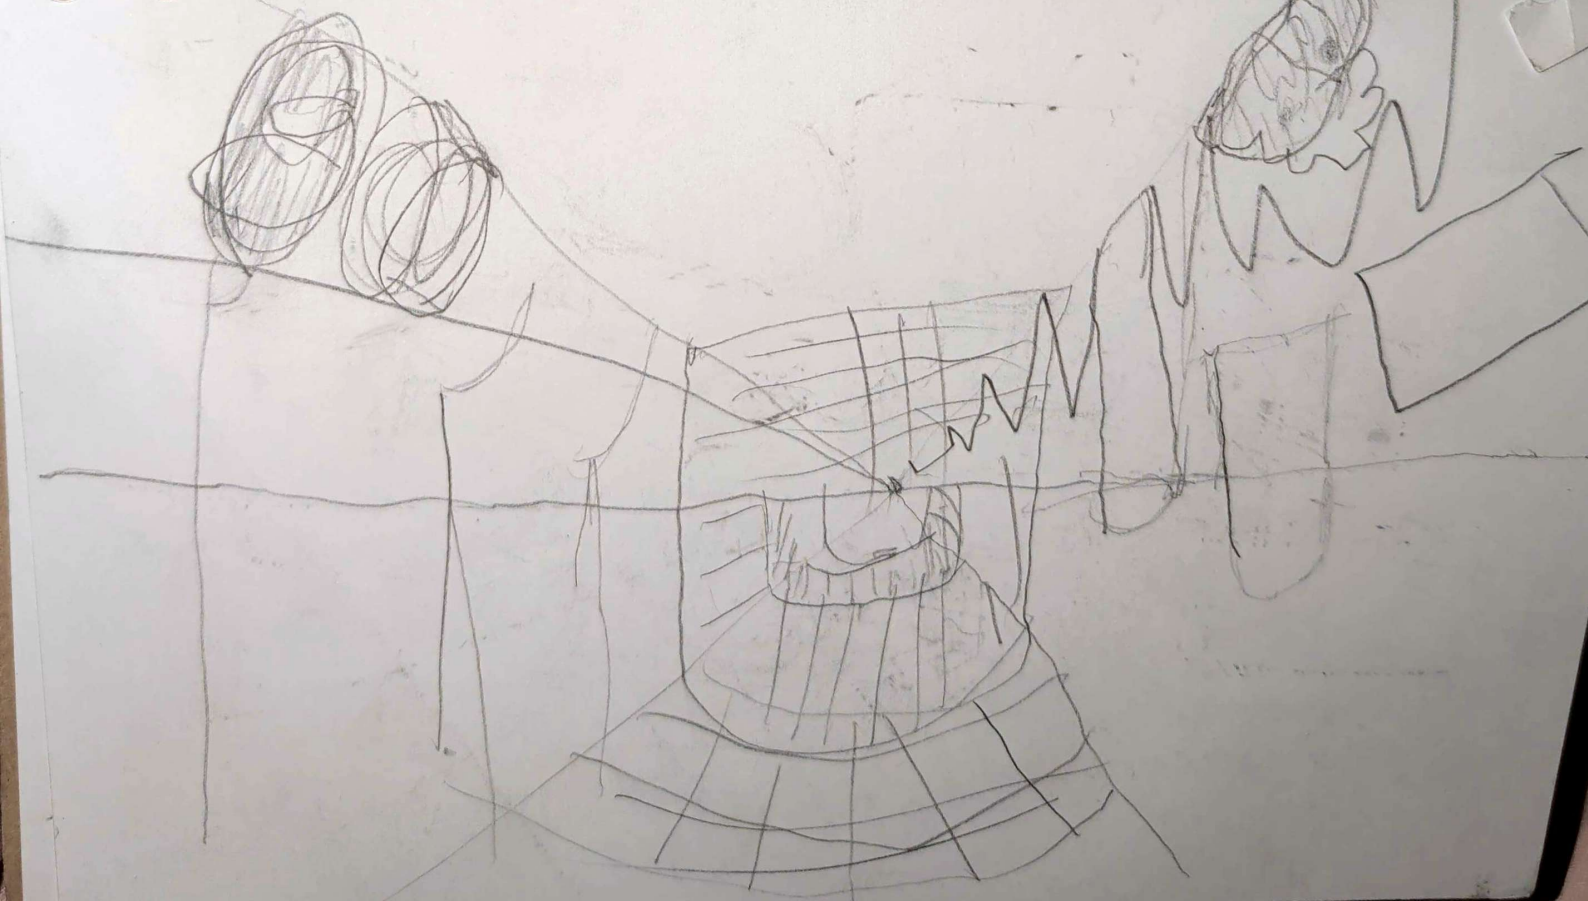

3. Add main elements, big shapes, convergences, VP, help place collectively

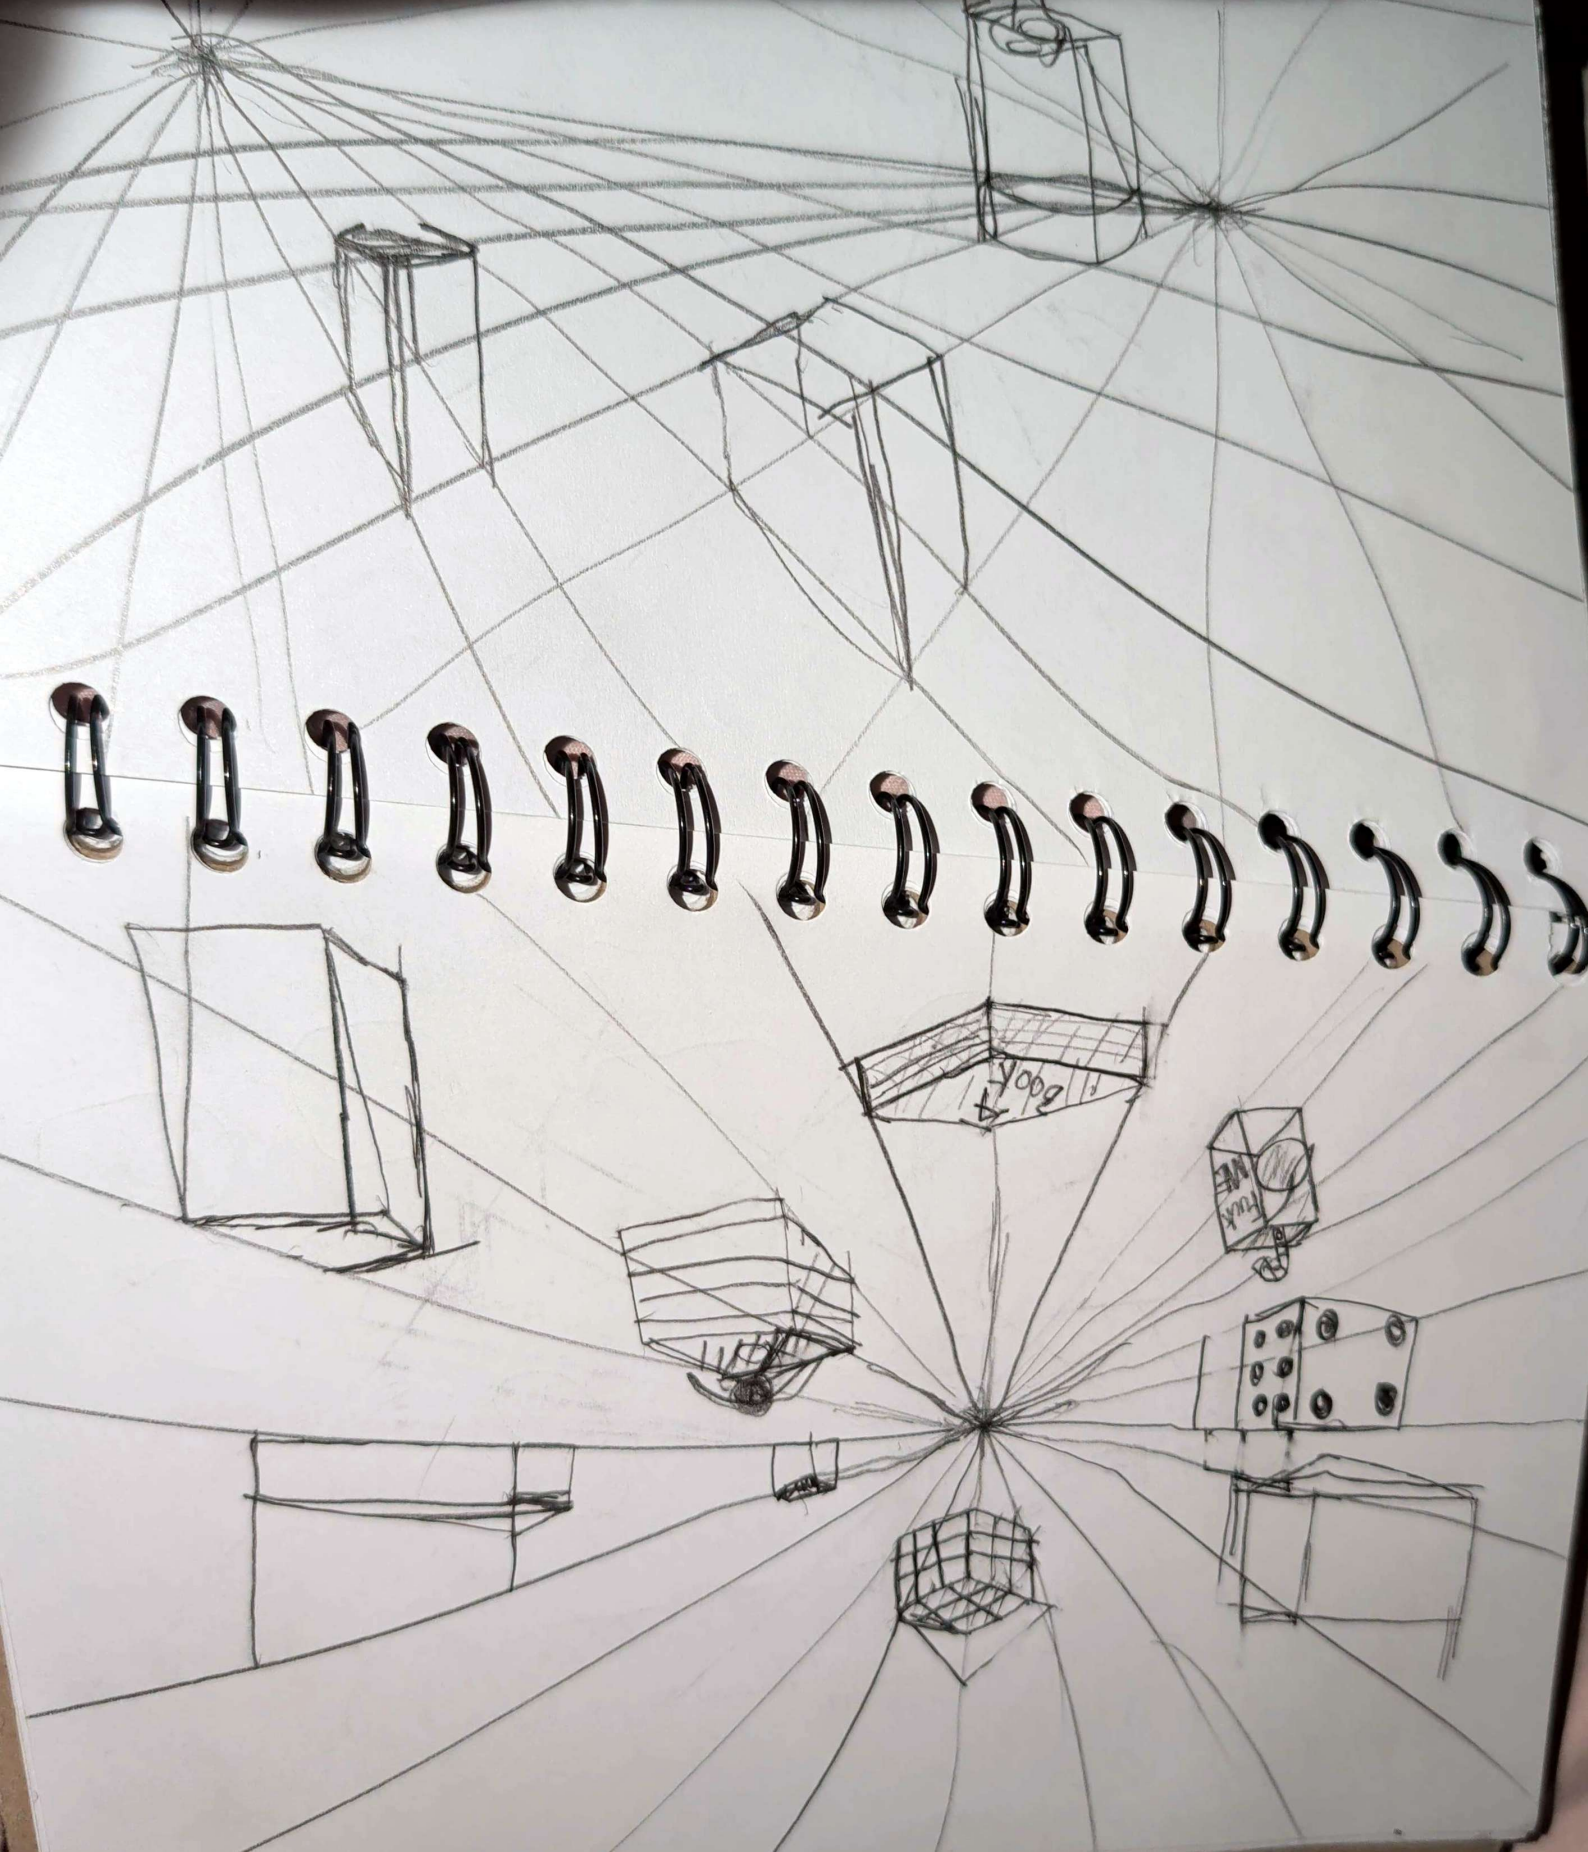

- Convergence lines don't always run direction you're looking at.
- Perspective does not always involve objects or buildings

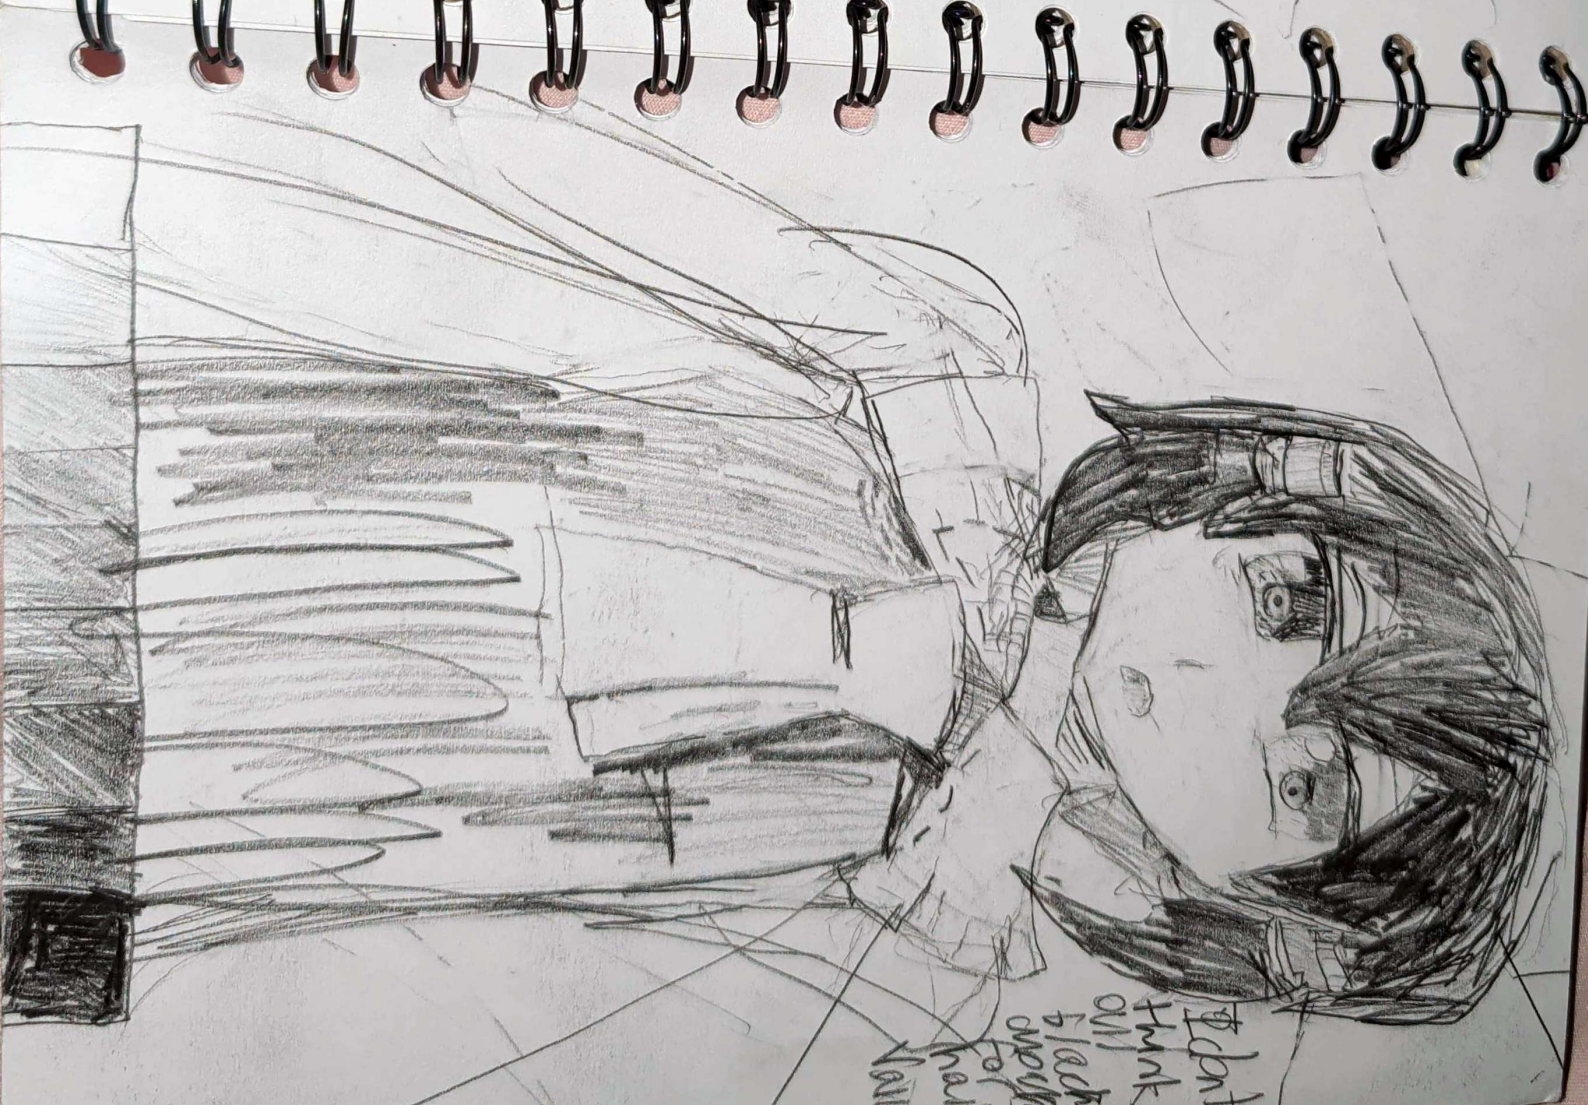

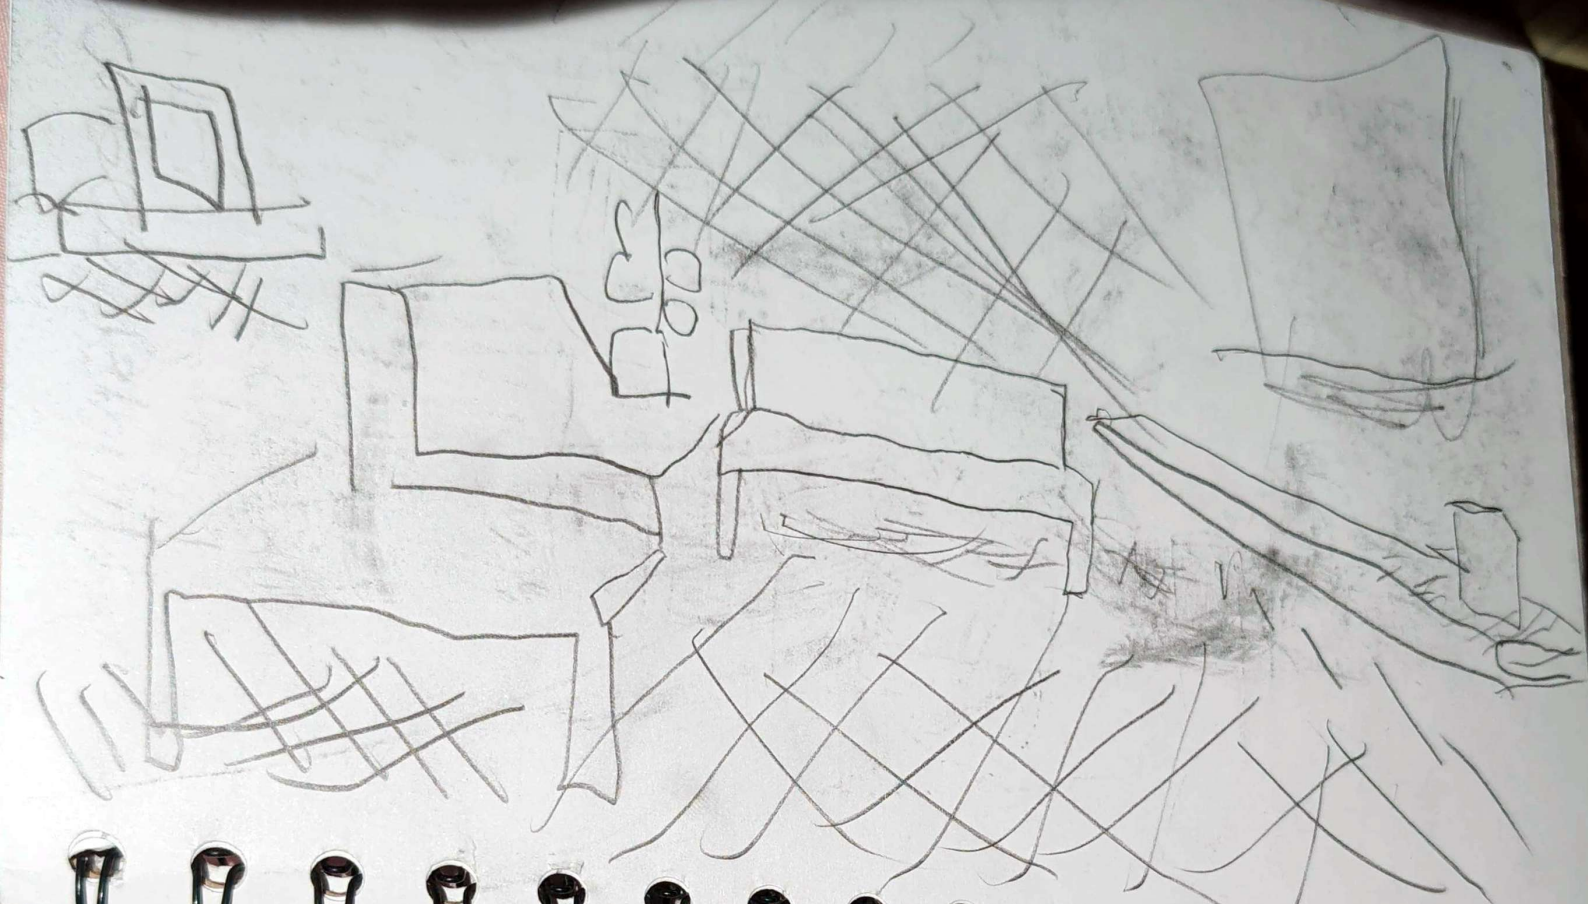

Draw horizon where so others don't work - further away things appear smaller in perspective

Types of lines

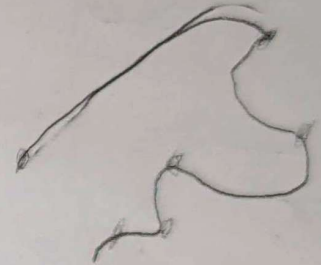

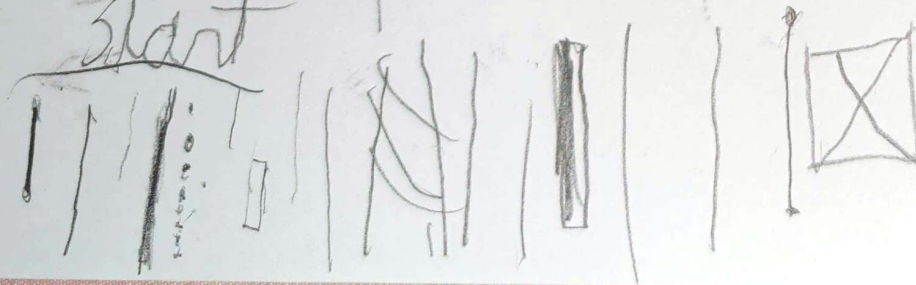

- Lines come in diff shapes and sizes: horizontally, vertically, diagonals, zig-zag, curved.

- Broken and implied lines included

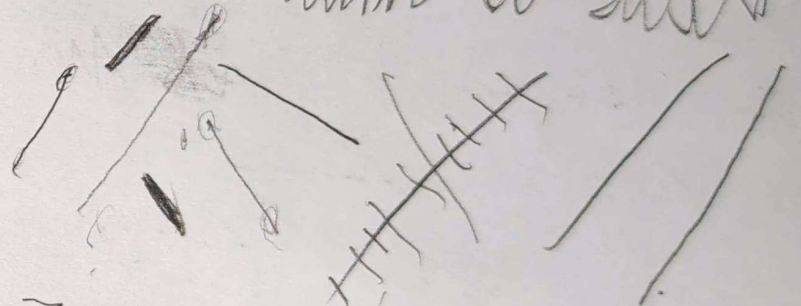

- Horizontal lines are lines parallel to horizon and generally flow left-to-right and vice-versa

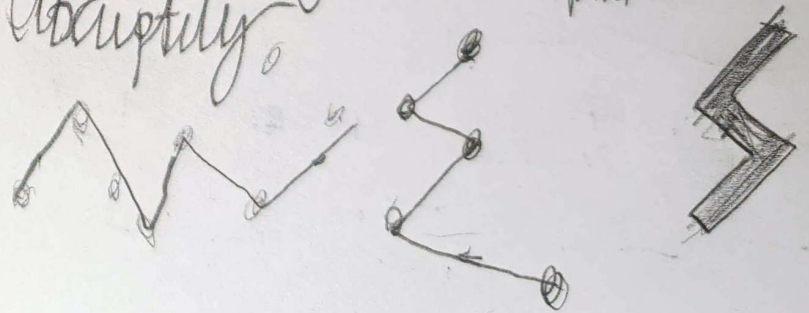

Vertical lines are lines that move up and down without start

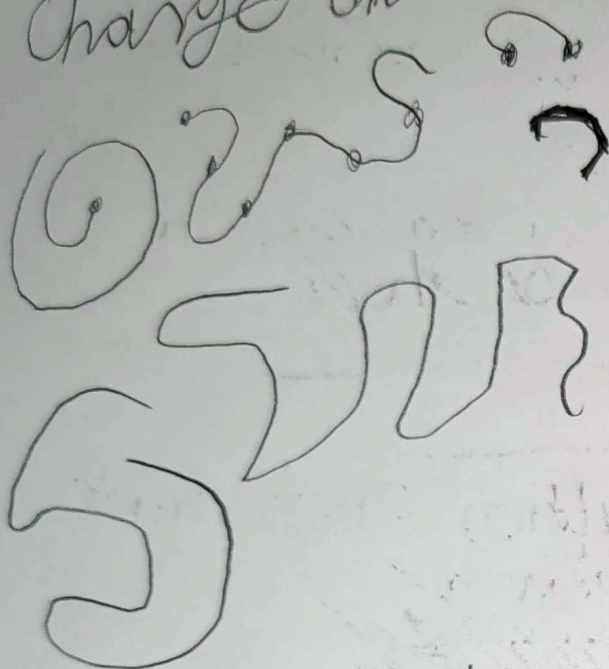

- Diagonal lines are lines with a slant

Zig zag lines are lines that change direction abruptly.

-curved lines gradually change direction

Broken lines include open spaces but continue on a path. May imply an edge or be used to communicate a highlight

Line Vocabulary Terms

Line - Element of art.
Most basic terms of drawing.

Length - Lines can be long or short

Width - lines can be wide or skinny

Texture - Lines can be rough or smooth

Direction - Lines can move in any direction

Degree of curve - Lines can curve gradually or not at all Hatching - lines that follow in the same direction in order to develop value or shading

Line quality/line weight
- Refers to the thickness or thinness of a line Varying lines make objects appear 3D and interesting.

Crosshatching - Lines that cross over each other in order to develop value or shading

Cross contour lines
- Lines more complex than contour lines. Cross contour lines flow over the form of the subject.

Cross contour lines mostly used to shade a drawing w/ hatching.

- Lines can curve or change direction in cross contour

This is not an apple

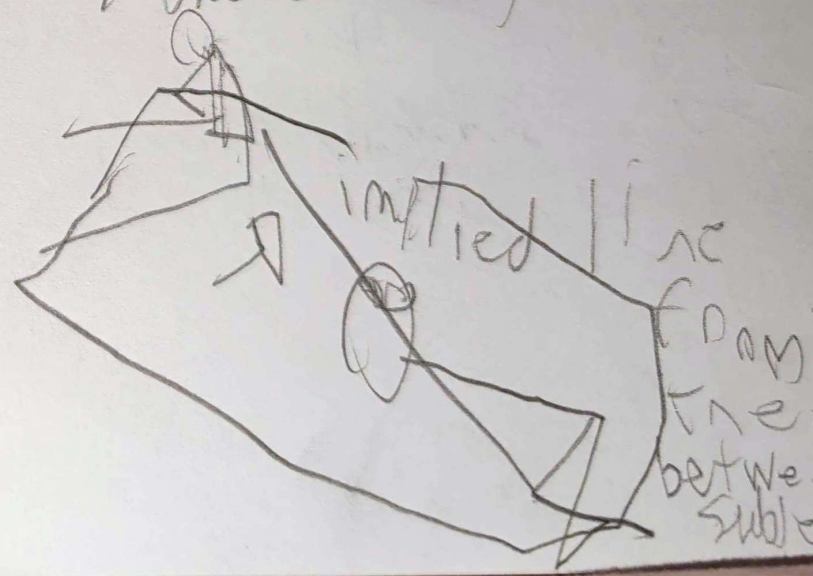

- Line can be used to shade drawings as well
- Concentrating lines creates dark values

Implied Lines

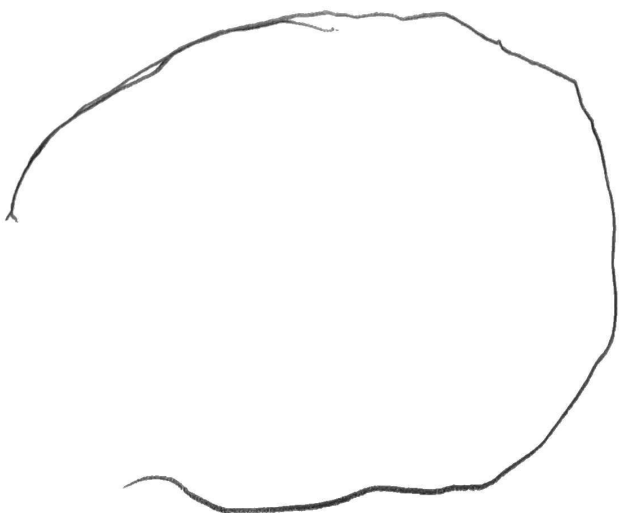

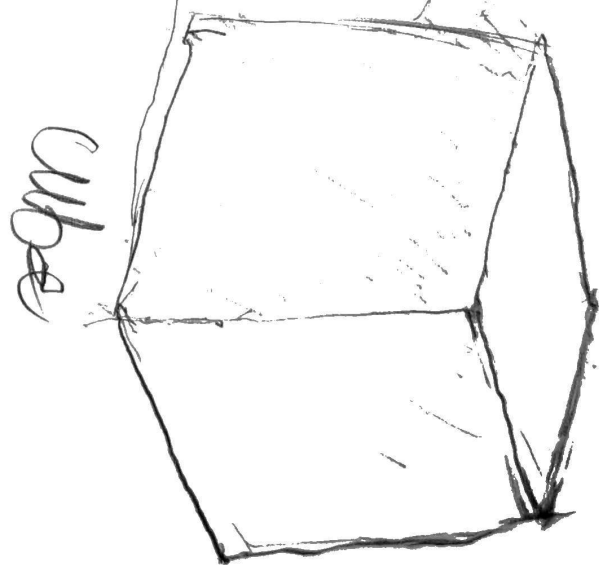

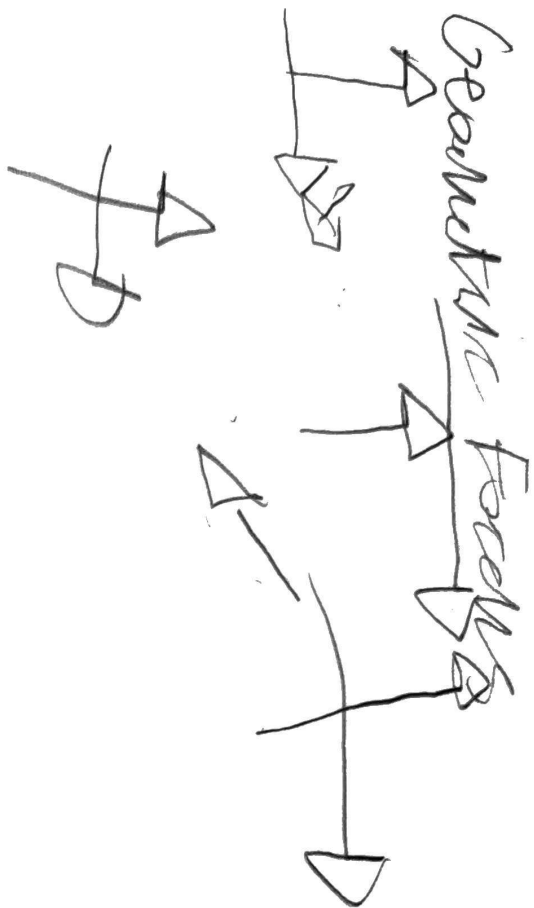

- Implied lines act similarly to line but are created by the mind rather than being physically present

Examples:

- Implied lines are lines of vision for a subject
- Helps direct attention on desired area
- (unrelated to implied line but line also gives a sense of movement) total - that are 3-dimensional, or have 1/1/1 height

Sphere

Cylinder

Cone

- there are...
- Geometric forms
 - organic forms
 - Representational drawing is good to create illusion of form

- Form created by understanding how light reacts on an object

Light is communicated through several factors

- Highlight is the area where light is hitting the object directly

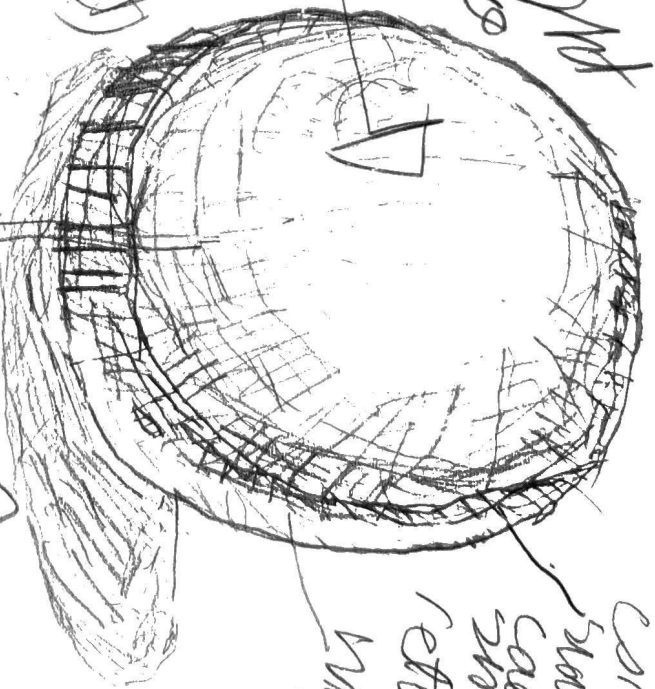

- The midtone is the middle value of the local color of the object

- The core shadow is the area that is shaded on the object

- The cast shadow is the area that is shaded on surrounding objects because of light reflected off

Highlight

hits object

Core shadow
cast shadow reflected light

Cast shadow

(shaded)

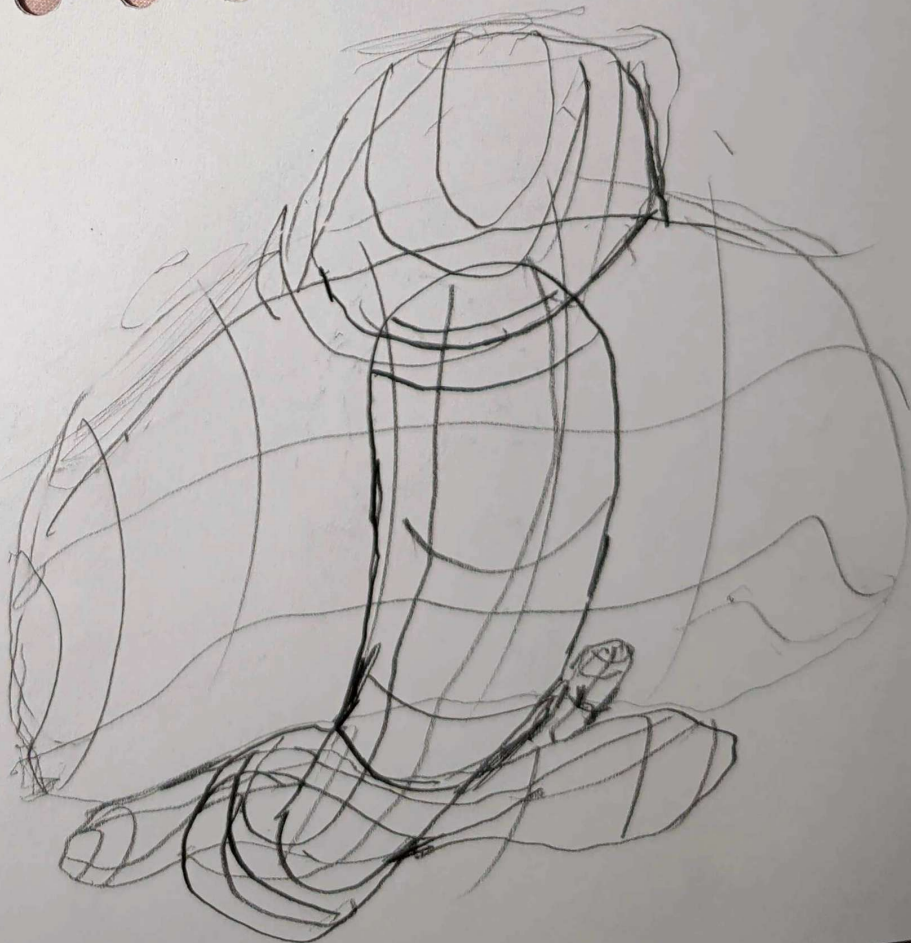

The value of surrounding surfaces from light reflected from object makes light

Drawing Organic Shapes
 - Organic Shapes are free-form, curvy.
 - Go from soft to structured geometric shapes

-the issue of drawing organic shapes start with a rough contour that drops down the connect/mirror below piece
 -contour lines give sense of volume + form

Drawing Feet
Do not draw common misconceptions

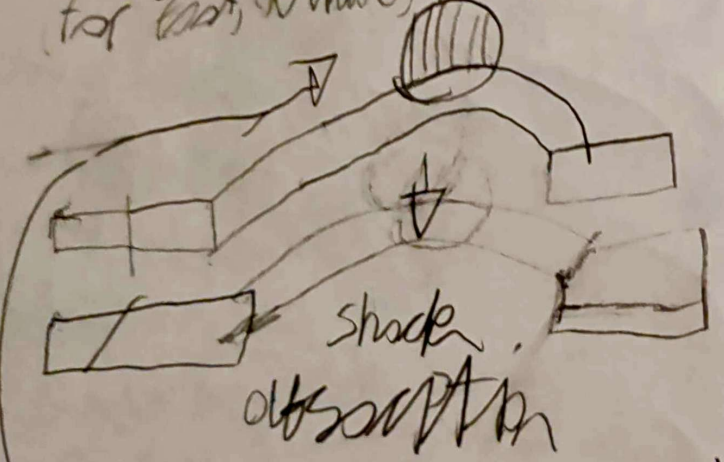

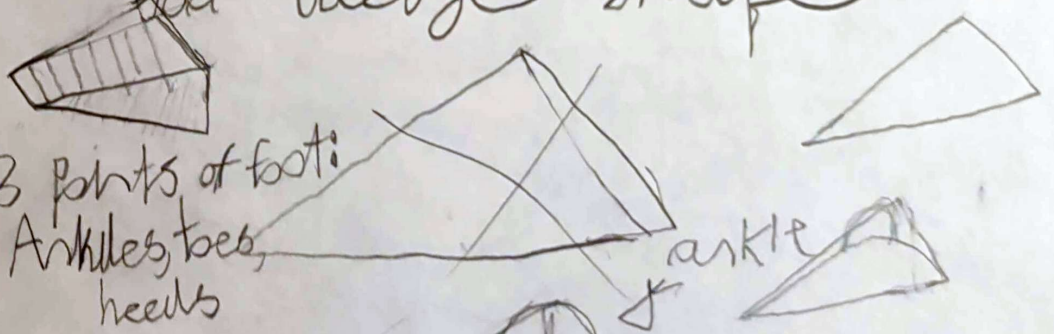

Make aren't missing!
- thin lines do not look straight. with curved details they look straight.

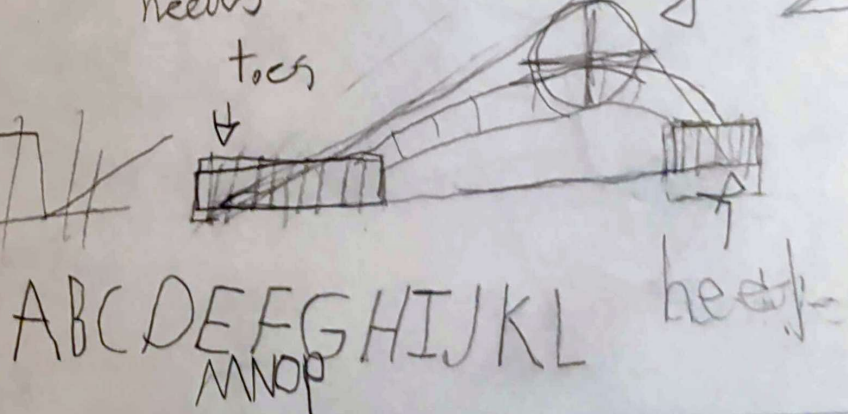

No! Legs do not have quality of a ball No!

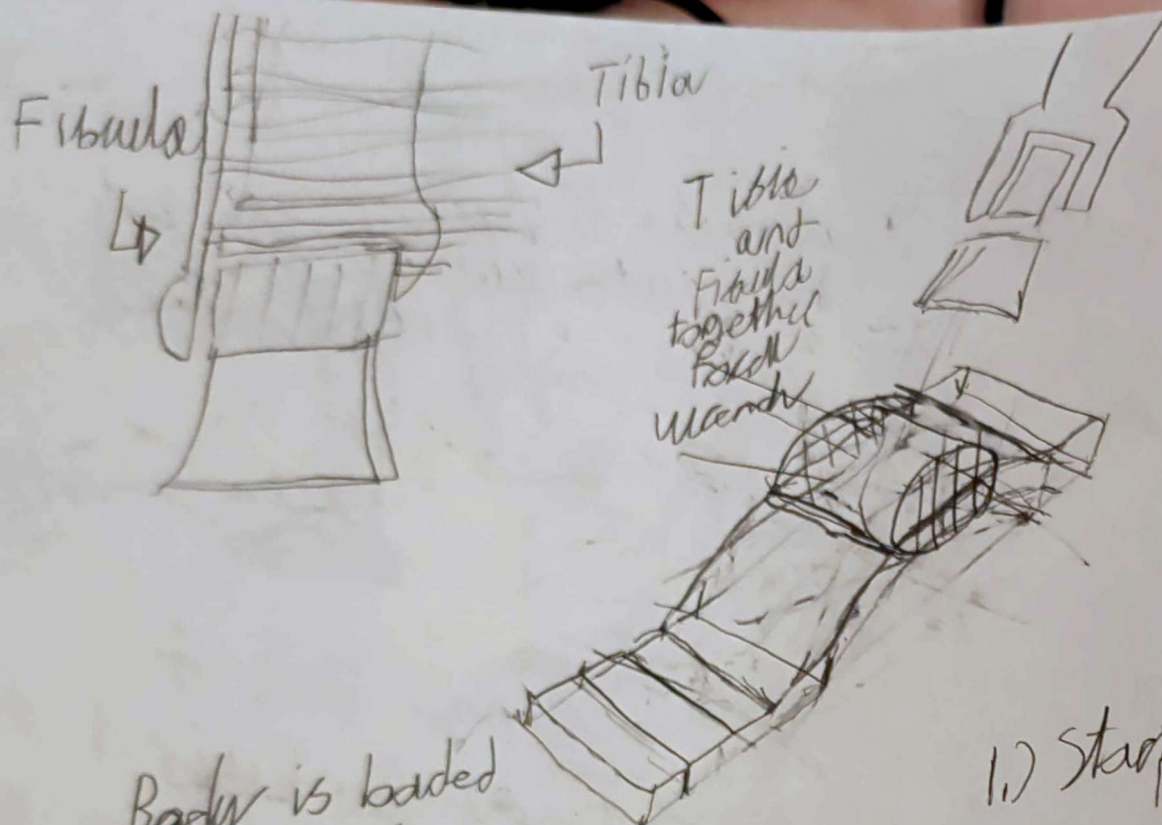

No! Yes!

A decent starting point for drawing feet is the box wedge shape

Ankles + legs positioned over the foot to take said impact from walking + jumping Body is loaded with perspective as avoiding it.

L.T L's are harder to work at right angle, T's are easier.

1.) Start with foot print

Letter 'T' in Perspective
(1. A feature exists sides)

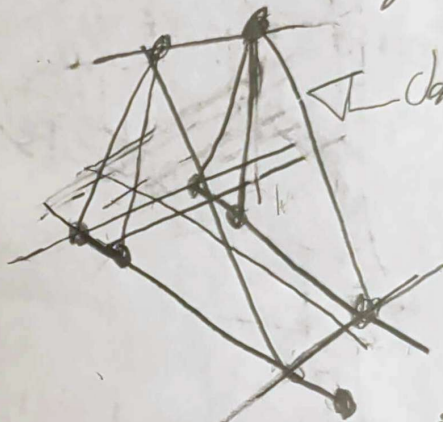

2 sides of footprint have been solved

2. Draw the 2nd letter 'T' the letter T assures the needed line strength + line connection

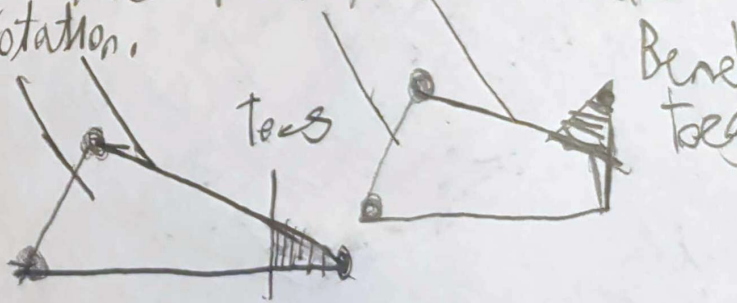

Now you have an x, y, z axis line and beginning of perspective

2. Parallels - Trace over original line down, then go to reset location then repeat action

3. Angles: Now connect the dots with angles as they are also parallel Articulate bones are tibia + fibula together forms a wrench-like structure that holds the foot bone in place as the pivot point for foot rotation.

This shape is in perspective

Foot bones side by side medially and laterally.

Each leg mirrors the other, not same orientation

Perspective

Lateral - A lateral orientation is a position away from the midline. Always else lateral to the chest

Crosshatching
 - A technique utilizing parallel intersecting lines to shade

- Denser line spacing = darker objects density can show difference in the colors. as denser, intersecting parallel lines give illusion of depth crosshatching to enhance and add dimension to art in subtle ways

Basic Technique

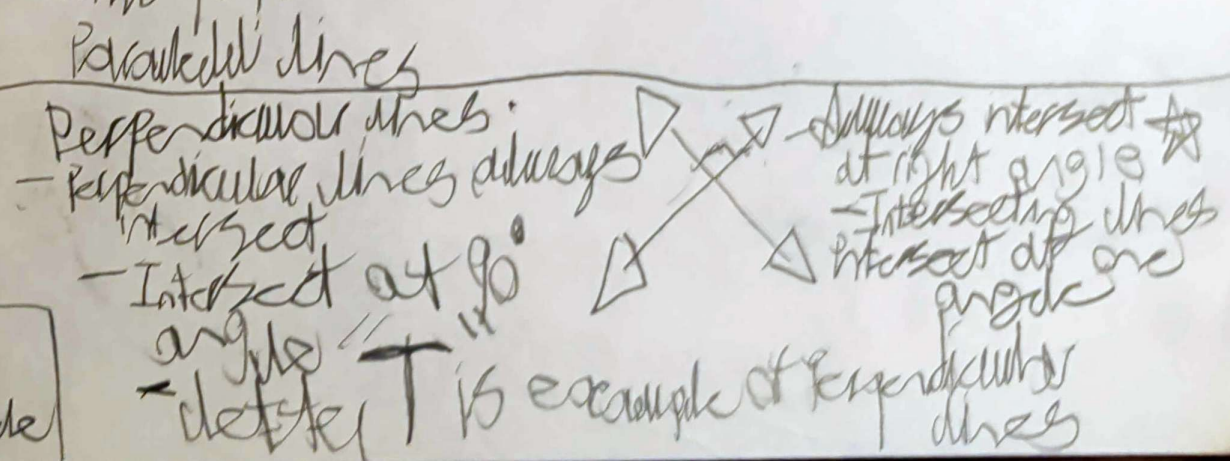

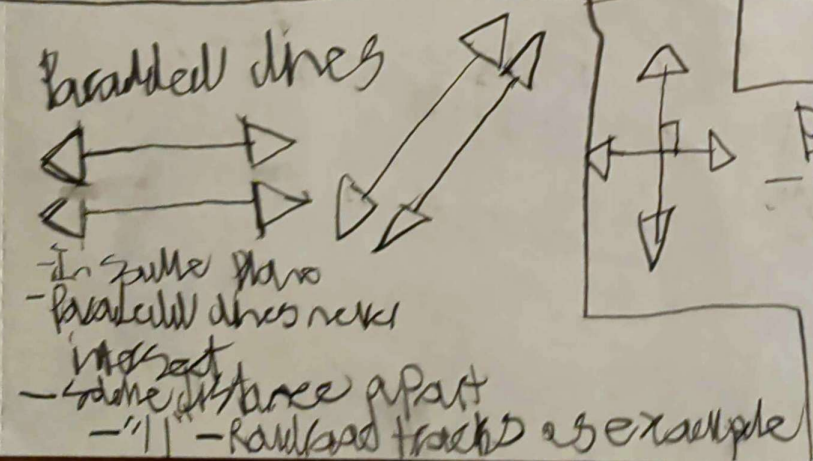

1. Draw a circle

2. Cross parallel lines with perpendicular parallel lines

Contour lines that surround and define edges of subject giving shape + volume of sphere

3 on next page

Try not to lose light too hard in

3. Next, draw additional crossed lines to add medium value to sphere.

★ Try to keep lines nice and banded.
 Helps bring sphere direction and interest

4. Draw denser dark value lines to add closed

5. Add additional lines to add as much value to the light source as possible

Horizontal

Try to make a predictable way

Make a

don't
